GEOPOLITICS IN THE 21st CENTURY

The course explains American geopolitics in the twenty first century in light of American History. This is very much an introductory course—of eleven lectures and seminars—that emphasises themes rather than specific events. The lectures cover the evolution of American geopolitics from 1660 to the present day. The seminars provide time to discuss a combination of texts and primary sources, including official documents and public treatises.

The course is conceptually structured around 'grand strategy' and 'geopolitics' in a way that will make it of interest to those who have a background in any period of the history of modern international relations. The aim is to teach students to think strategically about America's role in the Western Hemisphere as well as the world.
